Its getting hard for a plain man of ordin-ary, everyday practical testes toget on in the world now. When he comes to the city and expects to one the sights he is taken to pieture galleries and theatres with strong French plays in progress, and to bric a-brac exhibitions. A simple, honest countryman was taken to a picture gallery, and a violent and persistent effort made to entertain his with a subject he did not care about. They showed him around the pallery, they expatieted on the great pictures, the superbart, and all that sort of thing. He said nothing until he reached a window which look. ed out on the street. Then, as a horse out went rattling by, he turned wearily to his artistic friend and said:-"What kind of axle-grease to they use in this town ?"

The licitish trade returns show that for the six mouths ending June 30th the experie of the United Kingdom to Canada amounted to £2,470,000, as against £2,900,000 during the corresponding period in 1887. The caports from Canada for the six months amounted to £1,184,000, as against £1,368,000 during the first six months of last year. In other words, as compared with the figures of last year, our total trade with Britain for the half-year shows a decline of over $3,000.

A mallelous report having obtained circulation that the firemen, on their return home from Berlin, were not as dry inside as they were out, your correspond-ent took some pains to find out how much truth there was in the story and we are pleased to say that so far from being true the very opposite was the case. No company at Berlin acquitted themselves more creditably than did the Smithville. Indeed so popular were they that, on leaving the depot, they were given three rousing cheers by the citizens of Berlin, alike for their next attractive appearance as thromen and their gentlemanly bearing, and instead of coming leams unduly weighted over head they were more than surprised to find that a celebration of the remains (not of firemen) were lying about very promisenously, and just here let us again congratulate our brave firemen for again carrying off a prize under very adverse circumstances. We predict that one more effort made after plenty of practice will put them at the top of the heap.

D. W. Eastman is selling all strictly nummer goods each as Dress Goods, Muslins, Scorenckers, Prints, Ginghams, &c., at cost. See those beautiful patterns in American Prints.

Our Firemen were more than delighted with the attention paid them in Berlin. They are loud in their praise of mine who was here, there and every where, looking after the interests of the boys, seeing that their every wants was supplied. As for Mr. Jacob Heiser, who was detailed by the Berlin Firemen, to pilot the boys and show them the nights of the town, no enconium is too lavish to bestow on him, they vote him emphatically the right man in the right place, in short, a dandy reception committee. Should Berlin get up another Tournament they can depend on the Smithville Firemen being there if they have to walk.
